POOR—poor souls Tempest, i. 3 a full poor cell i. 2 me, poor man! i. 2 furled, poor Milan! i. 2 ails, poor search for poor ii. 2 a most poor credulous monster ii. 2 but that the poor monster's in drink ii. 2 to make a wonder of a poor drunkard ii. 2

POOR matters point to rien ends Tempest, iii. 1 poor worm iii. 1
 the poor monster's my subject iii. 2 his dukedom in a poor isle v. 1 to my poor cell v. 1 poor wounded name! Two Gen. of Verona, i. 2 poor forlorn in the street ii. 2 this parting strikes poor lovers dumb falsehood, cowardice, and poor descent my riches are these poor habits iv. 1 silly women, or poor passengers iv. 2 alas, poor Proteus! iv. 4 alas, poor fool! iv. 4 poor gentleman! iv. 4
 my poor mistress, moved therewithal alas poor lady! desolate and left iv. 4 yet I live like a poor gentleman Merry Wives, i. 1 the rich and poor (rep. ii.) i. 3 hang him, poor cuckoldly knave! ii. 2 yet, I wrong him to call him poor ii. 2 you have killed the poor woman ii. 2 the poor unvirtuous fat knight iv. 2 as you see, like a poor old man v. 1 master Brook, like a poor old woman what shall poor men do? v. 5 and poor as Job? v. 5 that poor number saved with you, Twelfth Night, ii. 2 if it be so, (as 'tis) poor lady, she ii. 2 and I, poor monster, fond as ii. 2 thrice five signs will I poor in you? ii. 2 not a friend greet my poor corpse ii. 4 (song) not a bosom, hides my poor heart iii. 1 how apt the poor are to be proud! iii. 1 one poor heart of mine in thee iv. 1 they say, poor Helen! v. 1 alas, poor fool! how have they v. 1
 'twixt you and your poor brother, Meas. for Meas., i. 5 the poor duke's constable (rep.) i. 5 a poor widow's tapster ii. 1 truly sir, I am a poor fellow ii. 1 truly sir, in my poor opinion ii. 1 but yet, poor Claudio! ii. 1 are either rich, or poor, or fancy ii. 2 as much for me, poor gentleman iii. 1 the soft and tender fork of a poor worm if thou art rich, thou art poor iii. 1 the poor beetle, that we tread upon a poor wronged lady a merited benefit this befall to the poor gentleman iii. 1 to take this poor maid from the world the poor Mariana advantaged iii. 1
 I have laboured for the poor gentleman for my poor self I am combined iv. 3 away with her, poor man v. 1 for her poor brother's pardon (rep.) v. 1 do perceive, these poor informal women but, O poor souls, come you v. 1 alas, poor hurt fowl! now will Much Ado, ii. 1
 I think it, poor fool, keeps you ii. 1 and torment the poor lady worse ii. 3 have need of poor ones, poor ones may but we are the poor duke's officers iii. 5 ah, though I be but a poor man iii. 5 dispose for henceforth of poor Claudio turned over and over as my poor self and extort a poor soul's patience iii. 2 in scorning your poor friend? iii. 2 from these that my poor company detect thus to make poor females mad iii. 2 and what poor man, poor eyes and through wall's chinks, poor souls but mark, poor knight, what dreadful to spill the poor deer's blood Love's L. Lost, iv. 1 and if thou strive, poor soul iv. 1 sometime to keep poor man's eyes rich things but poor v. 2

 'e'en one poor man; Pompion v. 2 alas, poor Macbeth, how hath he v. 2 yet, poor man, my father v. 2 poor men's cottages, prince's Mercanti of Venice, i. 2 that I have a poor pennyworth in i. 2 a poor man's son (rep.) ii. 2 a poor boy, not a poor boy, sir ii. 2 yet, poor man, my father ii. 2 the follower of so poor a gentleman ii. 2 will go hard with poor Antonio iii. 2 for the poor rude world hath not iii. 5 a pound of this poor merchant's flesh iv. 1 the twentieth part of one poor scruple but a poor thousand crowns As you Like it, i. 1 a poor unworthy brother of yours i. 1 or give me the poor allottery i. 1 the poor old man, the father i. 2
 O poor Orlando! thou art overworn i. 2
 O my poor Rosalind! i. 3
 I'll put myself in poor and mean i. 3 yet it like me, the poor dappled fool to the which play a poor sequestered stag poor deer, quoth he, thou makest i. 1 wherefore do you look upon that poor but poor old man, thou prunest ii. 3 alas, poor shepherd! searching of ii. 4 that your poor friend may see ii. 4 there is an old poor man ii. 7 even so poor men alone? iii. 3 to have rich eyes, and poor hands iii. 3 is the poor world is almost six thousand changelings, and poor discontents v. 1 poor Jack, farewell! I could have v. 4 the paining sides of his poor jade Henry IV. i. 1

 I am as poor as Job, my lord i. 2 a long loan for a poor lone woman i. 1 poor widow of Eastcheap (rep.) ii. 1 familiarity with such poor people ii. 1 my lord, this is a poor mad soul ii. 1 my nation, and that of the poor woman
 I do now remember the poor creature ii. 2
 I am the king's poor cousin, sir ii. 2 grant that, my poor virtue ii. 4 you, poor base, rascally, cheating ii. 4 for tearing the poor wretch's ruff ii. 4 alas, poor ape, how thou sweat'st! ii. 4 and burns, poor soul! for the other ii. 4 a poor acquire of this county ii. 2 have I, in my poor and old motion iv. 3

POOR—such are the poor, in health, Henry IV. iv. 4
 O, than we poor men do wish iv. 4 this poor show doth better v. 5 the poor mechanic porters crowding Henry V. i. 2 valued this poor seat of England i. 2 ah, poor heart! he is so slunk ii. 1 prisons' gains, poor man ii. 2 therefore hence, poor miserable ii. 2 take mercy on the poor souls ii. 4 poor, we may call them, in their native iii. 5 his exchequer, poor man iii. 6 alas, poor Harry of England! iv. 3 the poor condemned English, like iv. (chorus) and a many poor men's lives saved iv. 1 their wives left poor behind them iv. 1 that a poor and private displeasure v. 3 poor I have in yearly pay iv. 1 behold you poor and starved band iv. 2 and their poor jades lob down iv. 2 their poor bodies must lie and fester iv. 3 should they mock poor fellows thus? iv. 3 and my poor soldiers tell me iv. 3 the naked, poor, and mangled peace v. 2 the poor and untempering v. 2 O, than we poor men do wish Henry V. i. 1 these are poor servitors (when others i. 1 to visit her poor castle where she ii. 2

 the robber of the poor king's palace poor painted queen, vain flourish i. 3 say poor Margaret was a prophetess i. 3 my guiltless wife, and my poor children bifore sentence of poor Clarence's death? i. 4 how the poor man did forsake ii. 1 speak unto myself for him, poor soul ii. 1 help me to my closet, O poor Clarence! ii. 1 is lighted on poor Hastings' wretched ii. 4 these both put by, a poor petitioner iii. 7 go, go, poor soul (rep.) iv. 1 poor heart, adieu iv. 1 ah, my poor princess! boy, Clarence iv. 2 blind sight, poor mortal living ghost iv. 4 I called thee then, poor shadow iv. 4 poor breathing orators of miserie! iv. 4 the dire death of my poor sons iv. 4 poor bark, of the poor king's iv. 4 too deep and dead, poor infants iv. 4 poor Clarence, by thy guile v. 3 for want of means, poor rats v. 3 and the poor Eng and weep v. 4 communication of the most poor wretch Henry VIII. i. 1
 I am the shadow of poor Buckingham they have done my poor house grace i. 1 now, poor Edward Bolton ii. 1 alas, poor lady! she's a stranger ii. 3 for in a most poor woman ii. 4 with me, a poor weak woman iii. 1 for their poor mistresses' sake iii. 1 alas! poor wench, where are now iii. 1 my poor man, poor man, poor man iii. 2
 O how wretched is that poor man iii. 2
 I am a poor fallen man iii. 2 alas, poor man! iii. 2 and my poor name banished iii. 2 my next poor poor man iii. 2

POWER—of your nobility and power. 1 Henry IV. i. 3 only mean for powers in Scotland 1. 3 and Douglas, and our power, once 1. 3 thou have power to seize him 1. 3 made head against my power 1. 3 father, and the Scottish power 1. 3 who leads his power? under whose 1. 3 I cannot draw his power 1. 3 the powers of us may serve so great 1. 3 but my powers are there already 1. 3 with mighty and quick-raised power 1. 3 whose power was in the first proportion 1. 3 the power of Percy is to speak 1. 3 ere the king dismiss his power 1. 3 that we divide our power 1. 3 a speedy power, to encounter you 1. 3 is up, with well-appointed powers 1. 3 the power and puissance of the king 1. 3 with project of a power much smaller 1. 3 led his powers to death 1. 3 beyond his power to build it 1. 3 one power against the other 1. 3 you speak as having power to wrong 1. 3 to see his father bring up his powers 1. 3 the powers that you already have 1. 3 with such powers as might hold 1. 3 and he knit our power to the main 1. 3 so that his power, like to a fangless lion 1. 3 discharge your powers unto their 1. 3 call in the powers, good cousin 1. 3 our power collected, our substitutes 1. 3 with a great power of the main 1. 3 and by whose power I well might lodge 1. 3 the image of his power lay then in me 1. 3 majesty and power of law and justice 1. 3 in your and my speaking 1. 3 on the full power of France 1. 3 thrice that power left at home 1. 3 the noble sines of our power 1. 3 that the powers we bear with us 1. 3 as it comes to the power we work 1. 3 that his powers are not yet ready 1. 3 you have power enough 1. 3 livings, and my uttermost powers 1. 3 take with you free power, to ratify 1. 3 bid him brook it with me 1. 3 is come with a great power to raise 1. 3 at all times will you have my power 1. 3 follow them with all the power we have 1. 3 their powers are marching unto 1. 3 my forces are power to the main 1. 3 on, my lords, and join our powers 1. 3 withdraw me and my bloody power 1. 3 marched to Bourdeaux with his power 1. 3 keep not back your powers in dalliance 1. 3 I have no power to let her pass 1. 3 name and power thou tremblest at 1. 3 grief have vanquished all my powers 1. 3 had twenty times their power 1. 3 than heretofore vital power 1. 3 until a power be raised to pierce 1. 3 and all his powers do yield 1. 3 with a puissant and a mighty power 1. 3 so great a power without his leave 1. 3 backed by the power of Essex 1. 3
 'tis not thy southern power, of Essex 1. 3 their power, I think, is thirty thousand 1. 3 meet Warwick with his foreign power 1. 3 if secret powers suggest but truth 1. 3 he thinks, that he has power 1. 3 France hath brought a puissant power 1. 3 to meet the queen's great power 1. 3 those powers, that the queen hath 1. 3 hadst but power over his mortal 1. 3 you have power over his power 1. 3 and still his power increaseth 1. 3 the greatest strength and power 1. 3 where is thy power then, to beat 1. 3 and their power grows strong 1. 3 with a mighty power to her pass 1. 3 [Col. Kn.] do they bend their power 1. 3 seven thousand is their utmost power 1. 3 part in just proportion our small power 1. 3 from the mighty power of the king 1. 3 bid him bring his power before (rep.) 1. 3 will he bring his power? My lord 1. 3 wants not a minister in his power 1. 3 I have not the power to muzzle him 1. 3 you have half our power; the other 1. 3 and main power, took 'em from the 1. 3 of wisdom o'ertopping woman's power 1. 3 where powers are your retainers 1. 3 yea, with a splitting power 1. 3 his power raise you to the power, you 1. 3 and every function of your power 1. 3 by which power you maimed 1. 3 by your power legate within 1. 3
 I have no power to speak, sir 1. 3
 I have ye power as he was a counsellor 1. 3 power, power into will, will into Troilus & Cress. 1. 3 seconded with will and power 1. 3 whereof all our power is sick 1. 3 and had as ample power I 1. 3 all our main power stand fast 1. 3 the capacity of my ruder powers 1. 3 all my powers do their bestowing 1. 3 tempt the frailty of our powers 1. 3 all these spirits in power, this 1. 3 what a mental power this eye 1. 3 I myself would have no power 1. 3 being of no power to make his 1. 3 be of any power 1. 3 Apemantus, if it lay in thy power? 1. 3 in their rough power have unchecked 1. 3 allowed with his power 1. 3 within the shadow of your power 1. 3 ere thou hadst power, or we had 1. 3 all thy powers shall make their 1. 3

POWER—make bold power look pale. Coriolanus, i. 1
 it will in time win upon power 1. 1 they have pressed a power, but it is not 1. 1 some part of our power, but was a petty 1. 2 (letter) with one part of our Roman power 1. 3 both our powers, with smiling 1. 6 wrench up thy power to the highest 1. 8 to the forces of the powers 1. 8 dilingly crept into his human powers 1. 1 during his power, go sleep 1. 1 to his power, he would have made them 1. 1 have power in ourselves to do it (rep.) 1. 3 when he had no power, but was a petty 1. 3 where he hath power to crush 1. 3 virtue, no, nor power, but that which 1. 3 have power, then, val your ignorance 1. 3 the people had more absolute power 1. 3 not having the power to do good 1. 3 and throw their power i' the dust 1. 3 take from you all your power 1. 3 in whose power we were elected their 1. 3 or Jove for his power 1. 3 the severity of the public power 1. 3
 I have had you put your power well on 1. 3 ere they lacked power to cross you 1. 3 so far as that last power and person 1. 3 the old prerogative and power i' the 1. 3 wind yourself into a power tyrannical 1. 3 those whose great power must try him 1. 3 to pluck away their power, now 1. 3 from wit in the power of the tribune 1. 3 have the power still to banish your 1. 3 now we have shown our power 1. 2
 I would, I had the power to say so 1. 2 to take the power from the people 1. 2 I tell thee, we have no power on foot 1. 2 the Volscs with two several powers 1. 2 leads a power 'gainst Rome 1. 2 power, unto itself most commendable 1. 2
 'tis a spell, you see, a tyrannical power 1. 2 he hath abused your powers 1. 2 never lacks power to dismiss itself. Julius Caesar, i. 3 bears the power to cancel his captivity 1. 3 when it disjoints remorse from power 1. 3 Brutus, and Cassius, are levying powers 1. 3 down upon us with a mighty power 1. 3 bid him set on his powers betimes 1. 3 stay the providence of some high powers 1. 3 in overbearing power, power 1. 3 and malice have power to utter 1. 3 high in name and power, higher 1. 3 I have no power upon you 1. 3

 the Jove of power make me most weak 1. 3 strange, that his power should be 1. 3 grows not in the power of 't 1. 3 his power went to both distractions 1. 3 in every power that moves 1. 3 as he had power to beat me out 1. 3 had I great Juno's power 1. 3 had my lips that power, thus would I 1. 3 when my power is 1. 3 shall be the power we hold 1. 3 powers that he already hath in Gallia 1. 3 my mother having power of his testines 1. 3 but to put those powers in motion 1. 3
 when my power is 1. 3
 would cease the present power of life 1. 3 the power that I have on you, is to 1. 3 the fingers of the powers above do 1. 3 Rome have law, or we have power 1. 3 that my power is 1. 3
 if any power pities wretched tears 1. 3 and raise a power, to be revenged on 1. 3 and with a power of high-resolved men 1. 3 but, O you powers! that give heaven 1. 3 thou know'st I have power to take 1. 3 these hollow vessels with their power 1. 3 suffice the greatness of your powers 1. 3 beauty hath his power and will 1. 3 we cannot but obey the powers above us 1. 3 heard something of my power 1. 3 given me by one that had some power 1. 3 whom the gods have shown their power 1. 3 invest you jointly with my power 1. 3 when power is 1. 3
 betwix our sentence and our power 1. 3 by the power that made me, I tell 1. 3 subscribed his power: confined to it 1. 2 not as it hath power, but as it 1. 2 (letter) by and by a fool, and presently I'll send her to you presently yes, presently; therefore confess thee PRESENTMENT of two brothers upon the heels of my presentment those for preservation case give us particulars of thy preservation tender preservation of our person by great preservation we live require her times of preservation PRESERVATION—our preservation PRESERVATIVE, of no better PRESERVE—that did preserve me now good angels, preserve the king which to preserve virginity heaven preserve you! I dare Jesu preserve thee! welcome there is expense to preserve thee O that I might preserve thy good grace Got bless it and preserve it preserve the good duke Humphrey Jesu preserve your royal majesty and to preserve my sovereignty those for preservation case the gods preserve you! I dare the gods preserve you both which seeks best to preserve it I cannot preserve it from tainting distil? preserve? yes, so that no more than will preserve just so much, to preserve mine honour the gods preserve you!

 I will preserve myself; and am if I preserve this vessel for my lord PRESERVED—help I was preserved
 I have had preserved where hast thou been preserved have preserved myself, to see the issue rather than life preserved with men's flesh preserved so whole must gently preserve a lane, preserved the Britons have preserved her welfare how possibly preserved virtue preserved from fell great men shall preserve what cannot be preserved when fortune PRESERVER—my true preserver sit, my preserver, by thy patient's amillio, preserver of my father PRESERVING life in medicine choking gall, and a preserving sweet PRESIDENT of my kingdom PRESS—would press you down what he puts to lose to press with so little preparation neither press, coffee, chest, trunk press me to get with wit wish press to do my eyes you press me, sir, and therefore I will I press in here, sir, amongst the press me not, beseech you, so I have misused the king's press
 I press me none but good householders suitors press to speak for right O my lord, press not a falling man of war, would shake the press, and find press it to death do press among the popular throngs who is it in the press, that calls on what suitors press to him he is addressed; press near, and second nay, press not so upon me thus did softly press the rushes so bold to press heaven in Romeo, press one heavy bier to press before thy father to a grave PRESS'D—press'd the eyes while thou on pressed flowers dost am pressed down with conceit that Bolingbroke hath pressed I am pressed to death, through
 I pressed me none but good householders the gibbets, and pressed the dead bodies by the king was I pressed forth of York, pressed by his master I pressed in with this caution they have pressed a power being pressed to the war, even when as if it pressed her heart with leading thoughts
 PRESS'D—his from sleep
 in the coffers, and in the presses that presses them, and learns O! it presses to my memory
 PRESS'D—his from sleep
 her breast (worthy the pressing) PRESS-MONEY—there's your press-money PRESSURE—all forms, all pressures past of the time, his form and pressure

PRESENT—I am present to you dire que vous faites vous present
 I have it best with me
 PRESSTER John's foot PRESUME to harbour wanton
 I none presume to wear
 I do presume, sir, to presume presume, shall render you no blame my mind presumes, for his own regia, presume not
 I presume not, that I am the thing I durst not presume to look once that doth presume to boast I dare presume, sweet prince I will not so presume, to send and otherwise will Henry never presume dare he presume to scorn us killed, when first thou didst presume which, I presume, he will take in I presume, that, as you have for, I presume, brave Hector this, I presume, will wake him as, if it can, I will presume in you I presume, and presume to know presume too much upon my because thine eyes presume to reach PRESUMING on an ague's privilege our powers, presuming on their I'll be damn'd, if I do not presume let my presumption not provoke lose his head for his presumption is too much presumption on thy part they're not I killed for my PRESUMPTUOUS suit
 presumptuous priest! this place presumptuous vassal! are you not presumptuous dame, I'm assur'd which makes thee presumptuous PRESUPPOSED upon thee
 PRESURMISE, that in the dole PRETENCE is a pilgrimage to saint publisher of this pretence the pretence whereof against the undivulged pretence under pretence to see the queen the pretence for this named to keep your great pretences so many miles, with a pretence I make pretence of wrong that to no other pretence of danger that has a very pretence and purpose PRETEND—good gods, they pretend but such as shall pretend malicious superscription pretence some alteration if you pretend no title I pretend to strike at him whom you pretend to honour PRETENDED fight
 PRETENDING, in her discoveries still pretending the satisfaction PRETEXT to strike at him

 I say unto thee, I bid thy master iv. 3 this is true that I say iv. 3 Hortensio, say thou wilt see iv. 3 it shall be what o' clock I say it is iv. 3 pardon me, say you, I have iv. 3 if you say no more (rep.) iv. 4
 I say, it is the moon that I iv. 5 say as he says, or we shall never go iv. 5 it is not, when you say it is not iv. 5 so his mother says, and I may believe iv. 5 I say, he shall go to prison v. 1 then thou wert best say, that I v. 1 my widow says, thus she v. 2 a hasty-witted body would say v. 2 well, I say, no v. 2
 she says, you have some goodly v. 2 to your mistress; say (rep.) v. 2 I know not what to say Winter's Tale, i. 1 to make us say, this is put forth i. 2 say'st this to his, he says he's from i. 2 but let him say so, so then i. 2 should yet say, sir, no going i. 2 lest you say, your no going and I i. 2 they say, it's a copy of mine (rep.) i. 2 are to this business purblind; say i. 2 then say, my wife's a hobby-horse i. 2 troth-plight, say true, and justify it i. 2 say, it be; 'tis true i. 2 cannot say you, say, he's the i. 2

SAY—be but about to say (rep.) Winter's Tale, ii. 1 should a villain say so ii. 1 I say, I do not mistake ii. 1 much comfort ii. 2
 I say, I come from your good queen ii. 3 encounter with my wrath, say so ii. 3 wolves and bears, they say, casting ii. 3 since what I am to say, I must ii. 3 scarce boot me to say not guilty ii. 3
 I say, she's dead; I'll swear't ii. 3
 I say no more; how'er the business ii. 3 patience to you, and I'll say nothing ii. 3 but I am not to say, it is a ii. 3 that Time himself doth say iv. (chorus) say to me, when saw'st thou iv. 1 a man they say, that from iv. 1 his virtue, you would say (rep.) iv. 2 what would he say? or how should iv. 3 most constant, though destiny say, no iv. 3 say there be; yet nature is made iv. 3 which, you say, adds to nature iv. 3 this youth should say, as well iv. 3 he says, he loves my daughter! iv. 3 then, whither goest? say, whither? iv. 3 (song) which the wenches say is a gallimaufry iv. 3 but, my daughter, say you the like iv. 3 what you would say, say iv. 3 yea, say you so? there shall not iv. 3 I cannot say, 'tis pity she lacks iv. 3 who, I may say, is no honest man iv. 3 for a phœnix; say you have none iv. 3 some he has, and some he has not iv. 3 and remain, as he says, your pawn iv. 3 as I may say, even blessed iv. 3 his princess, say you, what? v. 1 if you have seen a better v. 1 whom he loves, (he bade me say so) v. 1 could not say, if the importance v. 2 I would fain say, bleed tears v. 2 to say, one would say, what? v. 2 you were best say, these robes v. 2 you may say it, but not swear it v. 2 and franklin say it, I'll v. 2 behold; and say, 'tis well v. 3 I may say, 'tis well v. 3 and do not say, 'tis superstition v. 3 well, Syracusean, say, in brief, Comedy of Errors, i. 1 O let me say no more! i. 1 they say, this town is full of i. 2 is your name, what is your name? i. 2 they say, every which hath a wherefore ii. 2 but say, sir, is it dinner-time? ii. 2 for your master, say he dines forth ii. 2 I'll say as they say; and persevere ii. 2 his hours say, say you ii. 2 say what you will, sir ii. 3 you would say so, master ii. 3 you wrong me much to say so ii. 3 I think him better than I say ii. 3 he you not heard, what he ii. 3 and says, God give you good rest! ii. 3 the wenches say, God damn me ii. 3 fly pride, says the peacock ii. 3 how say you now, my lord? ii. 4 sir, so will to say, you did not ii. 4 say, wherefore thou didst lock (rep.) iv. 4 say, woman, didst thou so? v. 1

 I am advised what I say v. 1 say you say, he is at home v. 1 no, I say nay; that's home v. 1
 I say, I say to the king Macbeth, i. 2 if I say sooth, I must report i. 2 and say, which grain will grow i. 2 say from whence you came, my lord i. 2 only I have left to say i. 4 thou't mad to say it i. 5 foolish thought, to say a sorry sight ii. 2 but they did say their prayers ii. 2
 I could not say, I am ii. 2 as they say, lamentings heard (rep.) ii. 3 what is't you say? the life? ii. 3 rank of manhood, say it iii. 1 say to the king, I would attend iii. 2 say how much is done iii. 2 thou can't not say I did it iii. 4 they say, blood will have blood iii. 4 only, I say, things have been iii. 6 whom you may say, if it please iii. 6 as who should say, you'll rue iii. 6 his speech, but say thou naught iv. 1 this great king may kindly say iv. 1 to say, I have done no harm iv. 2 did you say, she's O'hell-kick! iv. 3 how you have heard her say (rep.) v. 1 now, I say! one; two v. 1 some say, he's mad; others v. 1 pull't off, I say; what ribbard v. 3 what we shall say, we shall say v. 3 which I say I saw, but know not v. 5 they say, he parted well and paid v. 7 now say, Chatillon, what would King John, i. 1 who, as you say, took pains i. 1 lest men should say, we say i. 1 no sir, says question i. 1 who lives and dares but say i. 1
 I who says it was, he lies; I say i. 1 what England says, say briefly i. 2 say but he's from i. 2 say shall the current of our right ii. 2 let it be so; say, where will you ii. 2 not complete, to say, he is not she ii. 2 what say these say, these say (rep.) ii. 2 in wisdom shall you cause to say ii. 2 and say, there is no sin, but to be rich ii. 2 thou dost but say, 'tis so iii. 1 thou dar'st not say so, villain iii. 1 what should he say, if he iii. 1
 I know not what to say. What (rep.) iii. 1
 I had a thing to say iii. 1

SAY—to say what good respect I . . . King John, iii. 3 Thou hast no cause to say so yet . . .
 well, I'll not say what I intend . . .
 I have heard you say, that we . . .
 ay, the king will not say, no . . .
 I have to say with you . . .
 give me the iron, I say . . .
 which as they say (rep.) . . .
 what says the lord to you . . .
 whereon, he says, I shall yield . . .
 stand back, I say, by heaven, I think did not the prophet say, that . . .
 he flatter says, he'll not lay . . .
 they say king John, sore sick . . .
 I say again, Lewis do win . . .
 naught at all to say: first, . . . Richard II., i. 1 besides I say, and will (rep.) . . .
 our doctors say, this is no time . . .
 what shall I say? to safeguard . . .
 and the king's say, who thou art . . .
 when some of you should say, I was go say, I sent thee forth to . . .
 and say, what store of parting . . .
 O but, they say, the tongues . . .
 that do no man trust . . .
 right, you say true; as Hereford's . . .
 what says he now? Nay, nothing . . .
 (God forbid, I say true!) . . .
 But I dare not say how near . . .
 in plain, I would say, pardon us reply to aught you say . . .
 which they say, is held by Bushy . . .
 uncle, you say, the queen is . . .
 how can you say to me, I am a knight and scroop, who say to my uncle . . .
 hath but a heavier tale to say . . .
 what say you now? what comfort . . .
 to say, king Richard: alack . . .
 Northumberland, say, thus the king that says kill the Holbrooke? . . .
 then I must not say, no . . .
 why dost thou say king Richard . . .
 yet, what I say, is true . . .
 I heard you say, the king is . . .
 I wish I say, he lies, and lies, and lies
 I heard the banished Norfolk say . . .
 the king! will no man say, amen? . . .
 king Henry, unkinged Richard says say that again, he'll say . . .
 the rest let sorrow say of . . .
 let me see it, I say, Treason . . .
 for there, they say (rep.) . . .
 nay, do not say—stand up . . .
 in French, king Henry, pardon us as who should say, I would, thou wert that my heart shall say . . .
 the devil, that told me, I did well, says majesty, I should say, for grace . . . Henry IV., i. 2 and let men say, we are not of . . .
 says monsieur Nemorse? what says . . .
 were, as he says, not with such . . .
 therefore, I say,—peace cousin, say no you say true: why, what a candy . . .
 happy man he'll do for me . . . say you so? say you so? I say unto . . .
 and says to his wife, fie upon . . .
 a plague of all cowards, I say . . .
 and then say, it was in fight . . .
 he says, he comes from you . . .
 but, to say, I know more harm . . .
 I have much to say in the behalf . . .
 I say, the earth did shake when (rep.) who shall say me . . .
 would say, where? which is his waker?
 and what say you to this? Percy . . .
 like a dog, if he would say so . . .
 and I said, I heard your grace say so our purposes? will you say to us . . .
 the shirt? will you say the truth . . .
 why say you so? looks he not for . . .
 to-night, say I. Come, come . . .
 this is not well: what say you to't? . . .
 that friendship, say thy prayers . . .
 deliver what you will, I'll say 'tis so I'll follow, as they say, for reward . . .
 what shall I say you are? . . . Henry IV., i. 1 say, Morton, dost thou come from . . .
 this thou wouldst say, your son did thus yet for all this, say you not that Percy's if he be slain, say so; the tongue . . .
 which says the dead is not alive . . .
 yet did you say,—go forth . . .
 what says the doctor to you . . .
 and yet he will not stick to say . . .
 why sir, did I say you were . . .
 if you say I am any other than . . .
 I heard say, your lordship was sick . . .
 for you hear now, what I say to you . . .
 did I say of wax, my growth . . .
 if you will needs say, I am . . .
 lord marshal, what say you to it? . . .
 and she says, up and down the town court'ry, and say (rep.) . . .
 I say to you, I do desire deliverance but the midwives say . . .
 the worst that they can say of me is but they say, there is some of . . .
 how comes it that says he . . .
 which is as much as to say . . .
 ere one can say, what's this? . . .
 as they say, the emptier vessel . . . neighbour Quickly, says he, receive am the worst, when one says, awasger hold hook and line, say I (rep.) . . .
 they say, Poinc has a good wit . . .
 what says the almanack to that? . . .
 what says your grace? His grace says say, the bishop of Northumberland
 I dare say, my cousin William is . . .
 I may say to you, we knew where . . .

SAY—a man is, as they say . . . Henry IV., iii. 2
 she would always say, she would not . . .
 rah, tah, tah, would you say (rep.) . . .
 and say, on my lord of Westmoreland . . .
 I say, if damned comfition . . .
 and you shall say, indeed it is the time say you not then, our offer is compelled serves to say thus,—some good . . .
 that I may justly say with . . .
 chronicles, say, it did so, a little . . .
 shall have just cause to say, Heaven why, then say, an old man can do . . .
 life that late I led, say they . . .
 to say, is of mine own making (rep.) . . . (epil.)
 your me, I say, it hath been all in all, . . . Henry IV., i. 2 besides, their writers say, king Popham the prince our master says . . .
 I care not; I say little: but when . . .
 and some say, knives have edges . . .
 your me, what is what I say . . .
 what shall I say to thee? lord Scroop they say, he cried out of sack . . .
 but unwholesome food, they say . . .
 therefore I say, 'tis meet we all . . .
 your me, what is what I say . . .
 therefore he seems to say his prayers
 I say, gud-day, captain Fluellen . . .
 what say you? will you yield . . .
 and plainly say, our mettle is . . .
 and that I will say to know . . .
 thus says my king: say thou to Henry fo, to say the south (though 'tis no . . .
 we say, we will not fear it . . .
 I will not say so, for shut I should . . .
 and that I will say to know . . .
 since I may say, now I lie like . . .
 I dare say, you love him not so ill . . .
 I myself heard the king say . . .
 if ever thou come to me and say . . .
 and that I will say to know . . .
 and say, to-morrow is (rep.) . . .
 he says, his name is—master Fer . . .
 with a feeble gripe, says, dear my lord your majesty says you're true . . .
 I say, very true; scald knave . . .
 what says she, fair one? (rep.) . . .
 but directly to say, I love you (rep.) . . .
 how say you, lady? Sauf vostre . . .
 not to say to me, that I shall die . . .
 and say—Harry of England, I am . . .
 before they are married, would she say? what should I say? his deeds . . . Henry IV., i. 1 why no, I say, distrustful recreants!
 what say you, my lord? I'll confesse as who should say, when I am dead . . .
 a maid, they say, a maid! and be so how say you, madam? Are you now then say at once, if I maintained . . .
 stay, stay, I say (rep.) . . .
 for his craven heart, say thus . . .
 and say you are well warned . . .
 I dare say, this quarrel will . . .
 why didst thou say, of late . . .
 stay, stay, I say (rep.) . . .
 when Glister says the word . . .
 to say the truth, this fact . . .
 my lord, how say you? are you . . .
 say, gentlemen, what makes . . .
 the word you say (rep.) . . .
 as who should say, had had . . .
 who art thou? say, that I may honour but my heart says, no . . .
 touch as to listen . . .
 how say you, madam; are you . . .
 a virgin, and his servant, say to him to say the truth, it is your . . .
 be gone, I say; for, till you do return and say, which I am . . . Henry IV., i. 1 and so says York, for the hith greatest . . .
 I dare not say, for he hath . . .
 they say, a crafty knave does need no did the duke of York say, he was . . .
 my lord of Suffolk say, is this . . .
 I say, my sovereign, York is meekest say, man, were these thy words? . . .
 uncle, what shall we say to this law? . . .
 I'll say, I am duke Humphrey's . . . and say, I wronged the duke . . .
 well, my lord, to say so much, I say and 'twixt each groan, say—who's . . .
 my lord of Suffolk, say as you think say but the word, and I will be . . .
 say, you consent, I say, I consent . . . say, he be taken, racked his . . .
 will make him say, I moved him (rep.) . . .
 say we intend to try his grace to-day forbear, I say; their touch affrights . . .
 did seem . . .
 say, if thou darest, proud lord . . .
 with reverence may I say . . .
 and say—it was thy mother . . .
 they say, by him, thy mother . . .
 no more, I say: if thou dost . . .
 well, I say, it was never merry . . .
 as much as to say, as, let the . . .
 some say, the bee stings; but I say . . .
 away with him, say, his grace . . .
 I say, 'tis true; the elder . . .
 we'll have the lord Say's head . . .
 lord Say, Jack Cade (rep.) . . .
 here's the lord Say, which sold . . .
 all, thou say, this says . . .
 that say you of Kent? Nothing . . .
 as who should say, I'll be even . . .
 take him away, I say, and strike . . .
 what say ye, countrymen? will ye . . .
 his say, and say, God save his majesty!
 to say, if that the bastard boys . . .
 his sons, he says, shall give their . . .

SAY—I say, come forth and fight . . . Henry IV., v. 2
 I say, says the lord Warwick? . . .
 I know not what you say . . . Henry IV., v. 3 and say, alas, it was a piteous deed . . .
 say how he died, for I will hear it all . . .
 and dukedom, throne and kingdom say . . .
 for the last, say I say, and to it . . .
 hereafter say unto his grace . . .
 say, Henry, shall I have my right . . . which Warwick says is right . . .
 nor hears us what we say . . .
 I hear, yet say not much . . .
 and says, her Henry is deposed (rep.) say, what art thou, that talk'st of . . .
 will say, ay, to my request (rep.) . . .
 I hear, yet say not much . . .
 and so I say, I'll out the cause . . .
 well, say there is no kingdom . . .
 why, say, fair queen, whence springs myself have often heard him say . . .
 she could say little less . . .
 I say not, slaughter him . . .
 and says—that once more I shall . . .
 say, say you so? . . .
 say, Somerville . . . say Warwick was our anchor . . .
 though the rough wind say no . . .
 say, you can swim; alas . . .
 what I should say . . .
 away, I say; I charge ye, be . . .
 my lord, I should say rather . . .
 and say, I sent thee thither . . .
 I have often heard my mother say . . .
 as to the truth, so say you . . .
 about a prophesie, which says, that, Richard III., and says, a wizard told him . . .
 any thing we say (rep.) . . .
 I we say, that Shore's wife . . .
 say you, sir, a word . . .
 I, I slew them not . . .
 why then [Col. Kent—then say] they . . .
 say then, my peace is made! . . .
 prayer will scarcely say amen . . .
 dost she say, my lord of Buckingh?
 and say, poor Margaret was . . .
 he'll say, 'twas done cowardly (rep.) . . .
 the fee, and tell him what I say . . .
 to say at once, to my grace . . .
 therefore I say, with noble Henry . . .
 2. they say, my son of York . . .
 but say, my lord, it were not registered so young, they say, do me'er live long what say you, uncle? I say, without . . .
 I must not say so . . .
 you'll say a beggar, nay . . .
 so it should seem by that I have to say besides, he says, there are two . . .
 as to the will, what you say . . .
 pray God, I say, I prove a needless . . .
 I say, my lord, they have deserved . . .
 yet who so bold, but says, he sees it not?
 how now? what say the citizens? . . .
 are amun, say not a word . . .
 as I can say nay to thee, for . . .
 what says your lord (rep.) . . .
 God defend his grace should say us nay you say, that Edward says (rep.) . . .
 say it, in saying say, you shall know ere men can say,—God save the queen!
 when I say, I looked on Richard's face . . .
 say on, my loving lord (rep.) . . .
 say, have I thy sword, my grace . . .
 say, it is done, and I will low . . .
 what says your highness to my . . .
 but where, to say the truth . . .
 that I may live to say, the dog . . .
 kneels, and says, I am a . . . strike, I say,—either be patient . . .
 I say amen to her. Stay, madam . . . to save her life, I'll say, she is not so . . .
 which, say to her, did drain the purple . . .
 what where I best to say? . . .
 or shall I say, her uncle? . . .
 to arm me; leave me, I say . . .
 what shall I say more than I . . .
 what says lord Stanley? will he . . .
 say, amen, to all (rep.) . . .
 can be merry then, I'll say . . . Henry VIII. (prologue) men might say, till this time . . .
 I say again, there is no English soul . . .
 say not, treasonous to the king, I'll say!
 they say, they are deceived by you . . .
 let me say, 'tis but the fate of place . . .
 that oft, says he, hath sent to me . . .
 canst thou say further? I can . . .
 say, lord Chamberlain, they have . . .
 what say they? such a one . . .
 hear what I say, and then go home . . .
 and must needs say, a noble one . . .
 and when you would say something who's there, I say? how dare you . . .
 they will not stick to say, you . . .
 which, to say sooth, are blessings . . .
 I'll to the king, and say, I spoke with say, are you not stronger than you were?
 therefore I say again, I utterly abhor your speaking, and to say so no more that's to say, I meant to rectify . . .
 be pleased yourself to say how far . . .
 break up the court, I say, set on . . .
 they will me say so, madam . . .
 but say, I warned ye; take heed . . .
 (I dare say, without vain-glorie) . . .
 a kind of good deed, to say well . . .
 say, 'twitall, if you will . . .
 say, I taught thee, say, Wolsley . . .
 their coronets say so; these are stars . . .
 no man living could say, this is my wife if the presence he would say untruths . . .

 'Tis see thee hanged on Sunday (rep.) ii. 1
 'tis a world to see, how tame ii. 1
 I see no reason, but supposed Lucentio ii. 1 do let me see thee ii. 2 where I am, and sees you there ii. 2 see not your bride in these iii. 2 and see the event of this iii. 2
 I see, a woman may be made iii. 2 Peter, didst ever see the like? iv. 2 see, how they kiss and court iv. 2 tailor, let us see these (rep.) iv. 3 I see she's like to have neither iv. 3 say thou wilt see the tailor paid iv. 3 let's see; I think 'tis now iv. 3 and wander we to see thy honest son iv. 5 go along, and see the truth hereof iv. 5 nay, faith, I'll see the church of your v. 1 do let me see thee see thy master v. 1 yes, marry, sir; see where he looks v. 1 see the end of this controversy (rep.) v. 1 I charge you, see, that he be v. 2 see, where she comes; and brings v. 2 but now, see our ladies are v. 1 you shall see, as I have said Winter's Tale, i. 1 their life, to see him a man i. 1 he longs to see his son, were strong i. 2 whom I so much thirst to see i. 2 to see alike mine honour i. 2 who may 'st see plainly, as heaven sees i. 2 for you, see, my plight requires it i. 2 I never wished to see you sorry i. 2 when he sees her, she sees her i. 2 fourteen they shall not see i. 2
 I see 't, and feel 't, as you feel doing (rep.) ii. 1 to see her women? any of them? ii. 2 to see his nobleness conceiving ii. 3 you see how he uses her, feel ii. 3 and see it instantly consumed ii. 3 to see this bastard kneel and call ii. 3 that he did but see the flatness ii. 2 and see what death is doing ii. 2 do go and see if you can bring ii. 3 thou ne'er shalt see thy wife ii. 3 if thou'll see a thing to talk ii. 3 but see how it chafes, how it rages (rep.) ii. 3 I'll go see if the bear be gone from ii. 3 let me see, ever I love either to iv. 2 blush to see you so attired iv. 2 to see his work, so noble, vilely iv. 3 see, your guests approach; address iv. 3 and let's first see more ballads (rep.) iv. 3
 and let's first see more ballads (rep.) iv. 3 that thou no more shalt see this knuck iv. 3 for all the sun sees, or the iv. 3 I mean not to see him any more iv. 3 whom I so much thirst to see iv. 3 from the whom, I see, there's no (rep.) iv. 3 methinks, I see Leontes iv. 3
 I see, the play so lies (rep.) iv. 3 to be honest, I see, fortune would iv. 3 I see to see how you are iv. 3 sure, when I shall see this gentleman v. 1 the stars, I see will kiss v. 1 that once, I see, by your good father's v. 1 you'll swear, you see, there is such v. 2 did you see the meeting of the two v. 2 see you these clothes? say, you see v. 2 are going to see the queen's picture v. 2 to see the statue of our queen v. 3 to see the life as lively mocked v. 3 see, my lord, would you not desert v. 3 until you see her die again v. 3 preserved myself to see the issue v. 3 a love to see, I hazarded the loss. Comedy of Err. i. 1 and when they see time, they'll go ii. 1 live to see like right bereft ii. 1 I see, the jewel, best enameled ii. 2 see, here he comes (rep. iv. 1) ii. 2
 I did not see you since you ii. 2
 I am glad to see you in this ii. 2 and therefore, see thou do it ii. 2 to see the making of her carcanet iii. 1 to see if they'll disdain me iii. 1 for fear you ne'er see chain iii. 2 I see a man here, who does make iii. 2 but soft, I see the goldsmith iii. 2 I pray you, see him presently iv. 1 chain, I pray you let me see it iv. 1 I see sir, you have found iv. 3 do light to see the doctor iv. 3 master doctor, see him safe iv. 4 but I did never see it iv. 4 I see, these witches are afraid iv. 4 to see a reverend Syracusean v. 1 live to see like right bereft v. 1 since I did see it v. 1
 I see my son Antipholus v. 1
 my liege, as I do see your grace v. 1
 I see, a friend will save my life v. 1
 I see by you, I see a seal v. 1
 I see two husbands, or mine v. 1 to this fortune that you see me in v. 1 not a dream, I see, and hear v. 1
 I see, we still did meet v. 1
 I see by you, I see a seal v. 1
 I'll see it done. What he hath lost Macbeth, i. 2 let not light see my black i. 4 when it is done, to see i. 4 that my sword-knife see not i. 5 never shall sun at my window see i. 5 a dagger, which I see before me i. 5 and yet I see thee still (rep.) ii. 1 see, and then speak yourselves ii. 1

SEE—up, up, and see the great doom's, Macbeth, ii. 3 why, see you not? is't known ii. 3 well, may you see things well ii. 4 see, they encounter thee iii. 4 pry'thee, see there! behold! look! iii. 4 my little eyes see thee iii. 5 call them, let me see them iii. 5 I'll see no more; and yet iv. 1 and some I see, that twofold balls iv. 1 ay, now, I see, 'tis true iv. 1 when shalt thou see me iv. 2 see, who comes here? iv. 3 you see, her eyes are open v. 1 this three may you see it coming v. 5 whereas I see lives, the gashes v. 7 and yet, by these I see, so great v. 7 whom we invite to see us crowned v. 7 see a yielding in the looks of France. King John, ii. 2 if he see aught in you ii. 2 all I see in you is worthy love (rep.) ii. 2 shall never see it but iii. 1 from that Holy See? iii. 1 now shall I see thy love iii. 1 eyes, shall thou see me iii. 2 couldst see me without eyes iii. 3
 I now see the issue of your peace! iii. 4 shall see and know our friends (rep.) iii. 4 methinks, I see this hurly all on iii. 4 see else your death is no malice iii. 4 well, see to live; I will not touch iv. 1 out of my sight, and never see me iv. 2 although you see, that you do see? iv. 3 my not displeas'd eye see you iv. 3 to see so sad an hour as this v. 2 the great Metropolis and See of Rome v. 2 for I do see the cruel pangs v. 4 of speed to see your majesty v. 7 when he sees her v. 7
 I shall see justice design Richard II. i. 1 who when he sees the hours i. 2 shall good old York there see i. 2 of thine eyes see thy grieved heart i. 3 death not in his eyes i. 3 our kinsman come to see his friends i. 3 and see thee ill. Now, He that (rep.) ii. 1 to see this business! to-morrow ii. 1 we see the wind sit ii. 1 we see the sun ii. 1 in you I see old Gaunt alive ii. 3 ne'er see joy, that breaks that oath (rep.) ii. 3 I see thy glory, like a shooting ii. 4 see them delivered over to ii. 4 my lord Northumberland ii. 4 shall see us rising in our throne ii. 2 sweet love, I see, changing his ii. 2 well, well, I see I talk but idly ii. 3 my unpleas'd eye see your courtesy ii. 3 regard, live to see that day iv. 1 full of tears, I cannot see iv. 1 when I can see a sort of traitors iv. 1 but they do see the very book iv. 1 and let's see 'tis worth my grief iv. 7 I see your brows are full of discontent iv. 1 but soft, but see, or rather do not see v. 1 pale? let me see the writing v. 2 no matter then who sees it v. 2 since I did see your grief v. 3 I see some sparkles of a better v. 3 and never see that the happy sees v. 3 did sir Walter see on Holmedon? Henry IV. i. 1 praise him, see riot and dishonour i. 1
 I see no reason to see your i. 1
 I see a good amendment of life i. 2 tut! our horses they shall not see i. 2 fight longer than he sees reason i. 2 for I see danger and disobedience i. 3 to see him do as he doth i. 3 and see already, how he doth begin i. 3 thy lantern, to see my gelding in ii. 1 marry, I'll see thee hanged first ii. 1 let me see some more ii. 3 but you shall see now, in very ii. 3 such as we see when men restrain ii. 3 come, wilt thou see me ride? ii. 3 let me see—about Michaelmas ii. 4 didst thou never see Titian's ii. 4 I'll see thee damned ere I call ii. 4 you care not who sees your back ii. 4 that thou couldst not see thy hand ii. 4 my lord, do you see these meters? ii. 4 harlotry virtue in his looks ii. 4 I see virtue in his looks ii. 4 let's see what they be ii. 4 the earth shook to see the heavens ii. 4 see, how this river comes me ii. 4 I shall, it is not long, to see ii. 4 which hath desired to see thee more ii. 2 I never see thy face ii. 2 to see how fortune is disposed to us iv. 1
 I did never see such pitiful rascals iv. 2 Hal, if thou see me down v. 1 why, then I see a very valiant v. 4 embowled will I see thee by and by v. 4 but eyes, and nobody sees me v. 4 to see what friends are living v. 4 see, what a rest of suspicion. Henry IV. i. 1
 I see a strange confession in i. 1 yet cannot he see, though he i. 1 wai close, I will not see him i. 1
 I am glad to see thy ship abroad i. 3 we see the appearing buds i. 3 and when we see the figure of the i. 3 how might we see Falstaff ii. 2 to see his father bring up his ii. 2 and see if thou see me ii. 2 and whether I shall ever see thee again ii. 4 I'll see her damned first ii. 4 see now, whether pure fear ii. 4 you see, my good wenchies ii. 4

SEE you again ere I go 2Henry IV. ii. 4 and see the revolution of the times iii. 1 to see the beachy girdle of the iii. 2 aid to see how many of mine old iii. 2 do I see, see, he draw a good bow iii. 2 I am glad to see you well (rep.) iii. 2 let me see them, I beseech you (rep.) iii. 2 yea, marry, let us see Bull-calf iii. 2 you see what a ragged appearance iii. 2
 I shall never see such a good bow iii. 2
 I do see the bottom of Justice Shallow iii. 2
 I see no reason, in the law of iii. 2 whose See is by a civil peace iv. 1 see which way the stream of iv. 2 than now to see you here iv. 2 and see you guard him sure iv. 3 where is he? let me see him iv. 4 see, sons, what things you are! iv. 4 let me see, Davy, let me see iv. 4 I am glad to see your worship v. 1 too see the semblable coherence v. 1 O you shall see him laugh, till his v. 2 and never shall you see, that I v. 2 so much profaned, see your most v. 2 live to see a son of mine v. 2 nay, you shall see mine orchard v. 3 I hope to see London once (rep.) v. 3 zeal I had to see him (rep.) v. 5 to perform the duty of my v. 5 that you see them printing Henry V. i. (chorus) but see thy fault! France hath ii. (chorus) what see you in those papers ii. 2 see you, my princes, and my noble ii. 2 we will not see such a ii. 2 and smiled to see him mangle ii. 4 you see, this chase is hotly followed ii. 4 and therein see a siege iii. (chorus) I see you stand like greyhounds iii. 1 to see the blind, or bloody soldier iii. 3 when he shall see our army iii. 5 but I did see him do gallant service iii. 6 as you shall see in a summer's day iii. 6 truly, see him in his iii. 6 but let me see (rep. v. 2) iii. 6 each battle sees the other's umbred iv. (cho.) yet sit and see; minding true iv. (cho.) see you yonder the beginning of iv. 1 the more when he sees the iv. 1 outline that day to see his greatness iv. 1 if I live to see it (rep.) iv. 1 never sees horrid night iv. 1 and see (Kmf-live) old age iv. 3 I can see my wife in his iv. 3 if he be perjured, see you now iv. 7
 I would fain see the man, that has iv. 7 see it once; an' please God (rep.) iv. 7 fullnow; and see there be no harm iv. 7 I solemnly see him see on v. (chorus) till I see him once again v. 1 thou dost see, I eat v. 1 when you take occasion to see leeks v. 2 shall see advantage for v. 2 see, the pining in the eyes of France v. 2 when they see not what they do v. 2 who cannot see many a fair French city v. 2 you see them respectively v. 2 when he sees me go back one Henry VI. 2. 1
 I see with, which you see v. 2 see the coast cleared, and then we v. 3 watched, if I could see them v. 4 for aught I see, this city must v. 4 may then, I see, our wars v. 4
 I see report in cautious and faint v. 4
 I laugh to see your ladyship so v. 4 for what you see, is but the v. 4 and see what enters you have v. 4 will see his but not his v. 4 ay, see the bishop be not overbold v. 4 Plantagenet, I see, must hold his v. 4 you see what mischief, and what v. 4 or I would see his heart out, ere v. 4 see here, my friends, and loving v. 4 and will see, what physic the v. 4 see, noble Charles! the beacon v. 4 but see his exequies fulfilled v. 4 and see the cities and the towns defaced v. 4 see, see, the pining in the eyes of France v. 4 see then, thou fight'st against v. 4 when thou shalt see, I'll meet v. 4 I see no reason, if I wear v. 4 no simple man that sees this v. 4 does see the novel colours v. 4 years did not Talbot see his son v. 4 see, where he lies inhearsed v. 4 my lord protector, see their guarded v. 4 see, Reinier, see, thy daughter prisoner v. 4 to see her coronation be performed Henry VI. 3. 1 in thy face I see thy fury v. 4 we'll see these things effected v. 4 let me see them; what is this v. 4 come Somerset we'll see thee sent away v. 4 I do not it not see, you will questioned v. 4 see your trinkets here all forthcoming v. 4 let's see the devil's writ v. 4 to see how God in all his creatures v. 4 protector, see to it well, protect yourself v. 4 let me see these eyes wink now v. 4 yet did he never see v. 4
 it made me laugh to see the villain v. 4 Gloster, see here the tainture v. 4
 I see no reason why a king v. 4 to see this quarrel tried (rep.) v. 4 then see thou thump thy v. 4 tear-stained eyes to see her miseries v. 4 to see my open shame? v. 4 see how the girl's mind v. 4 to see my tears, and hear my v. 4
 I long to see my prison v. 4 can you not see? or will you not v. 4 yet thou shalt not see me blush v. 4

SEE—in thy face I see the map of 2Henry VI. iii. 1 that I will see performed (rep.) iii. 1 that is to see how deep my iii. 2 seeing him, I see my life in death iii. 2 see how the blood is set on iii. 2 and sees fast by a butcher iii. 2 see, how the pangs of death iii. 3
 I see them, I see them! iv. 2
 I'll see if his head will stand iv. 7
 I see these loving it (rep.) iv. 7 to see if I can eat grass iv. 10 see if thou canst outface me iv. 10 see Buckingham (rep.) v. 2 we then should see the bottom of v. 1 and we will live to see their day 3Henry VI. 1. 1 before I see thee seated 3Henry VI. 1. 1 if once they see them spread i. 1 I'll see your grace; till then i. 4 he'd, I see, to make me sport i. 4 see, ruthless queen, a helpless father's i. 4 to see how low sorrow gripes i. 4 see, how the morning opens her i. 4 or do I see three suns? ii. 1 see, see! they join embrace ii. 1 O, never, shall I see more joy ii. 1 live to see a sunshine day ii. 2 to see this sight, it irks my ii. 2 thereby to see the minutes how ii. 5 but let me see, this our foeman's ii. 5 see, see, what showers arise ii. 5 see who it is; and, now the battle's ii. 6 and he no sees, nor hears us ii. 6 first will I see the coronation ii. 6 I see these things, that I ii. 6 to hear and see, her plapings iii. 1 I see, the lady hath a thing to grant iii. 2 see, that he be conveyed unto the iii. 3 and see where comes the breeder of iii. 3
 If he you see, his name iv. 3 nay, then I see, that Edward iv. 3 see that forthwith duke Edward iv. 3 and see him seated in the regal throne iv. 3 see, when he see the handmen stand iv. 5 till I see them here, by doubtless iv. 5 see, how the surly Warwick v. 1 O cheerful colours! see where Oxford v. 4 my heart to see your forwardness v. 4 you see, I shall be the wife of v. 4 to see your gentle queen how v. 5 see how my sword weeps for v. 6
 [Col. Ant.] unless to see my shadow, Richard III. i. 1
 O gentlemen, see, see! dead Henry's i. 2 with all his blood, do you see i. 2 to see you are become so penitent i. 2 that I may see my shadow as I pass i. 3 then present, wopt to see it i. 3 and see another, as I see these now i. 3 O how he makes me i. 4
 let him see our commission i. 4 came too lag to see him buried ii. 1 when I see my shame in him ii. 2 I did not see your grace ii. 2 look to see a troublemaker ii. 3 we see the water swell before ii. 3 with all my heart to see the prince ii. 4 ah me, I see the ruin of my house! ii. 4
 I see, as in a map, the end of all ii. 4
 O how soon they'll part ii. 4 where, he shall see, the boat will use ii. 2 before I'll see the crown so foul ii. 2 but yet, you see, how soon the day ii. 2
 I am glad to see your honour ii. 2
 I will not see the man see the name ii. 4 he longs to see your head ii. 4 he is, and see, he brings the mayor ii. 5 your lordship came to see his end ii. 5 yet who so bold as that says, he sees it not? ii. 5 cannot see this palpable device? (rep.) ii. 7 see where his grace stands 'twixt ii. 7 and see, a book of prayer in ii. 7 and you may partly see, how far ii. 7 we see it, and will say it ii. 7 father's mother, I will see them ii. 7 the king is angry; see, he gnaws ii. 2 but didst thou see them dead? iv. 3 and see what now thou art iv. 3 the earl to see me in my tent v. 3 that come to see only a show Henry VIII. (prol.)
 may see away their shilling richly (prol.) or to see a fellow in a long motley (prol.) think, ye see the very persons (rep.) (prol.) how soon this motley (rep.)
 but I can see his pride peep i. 1 when we see each grain of gravel i. 1 under pretence to see the queen i. 1 to see you 'a'en from liberty i. 1 I will not see these noble i. 3 as far as I see, all the good our i. 3 may be wise, and never see the Louvre i. 3 let me see them; by all your good i. 4 and see the noble ruined man i. 1 is coming to see the barge he ready ii. 2 these affairs see this main end ii. 2 my Wolsey, see it furnished ii. 3 why, this is it; see, see! ii. 3 we shall see him for, if an archbishop ii. 2 and man see me more ii. 2 it is, to see a nobleman want manners ii. 2 my heart weeps to see him so little ii. 2 sent from the king to see you iv. 2 this fellow, let me not see again iv. 2 and this morning see you do appear v. 1 I see your end, 'tis my undoing v. 2 and see him safe 'till the Tower v. 2 now let me see the product v. 2 there's a law to see no more v. 2 the common voice, I see, is v. 3 you see the poor remainder v. 3 let me never hope to see a chine again v. 3 when I might see from far v. 3

SEE—children's children shall see Henry VIII. v. 4 many days shall see cunning you v. 4 I shall desire to see what this child v. 4 ye must all see the queen v. 4 tell her, the next time I see her Troilus & Cress. i. 1 all the while, to see the battle i. 2 do you know a man? see i. 2 see them as they pass toward Ilum? i. 2 here we may see most bravely i. 2 mark Troilus; you shall see anon i. 2 if he see me, you shall see him i. 2 you shall see. If he do the rich i. 2 look you yonder, do you see? i. 2
 'would I could see Troilus now! i. 2 in Troilus thousand fold I see than i. 2
 I see them not with my old eyes i. 5
 I see none now. Thou bitch-wolf's i. 1 you see him there, do you? ii. 1 I will see you hanged, like ii. 1 but I'll see some issue of my ii. 3 no, you see, he is his argument ii. 3 and let's see your picture ii. 2 they never see truly ii. 2 see, we fools! why have I blabbed ii. 2 see, see, your silence ii. 3 married there where it may see itself ii. 3 now shall we see to-morrow ii. 3 to see these Grecian lords! ii. 3 see, my reputation is at stake ii. 3 to see us here unarm'd ii. 3 to see great Hector in his weeds ii. 3 you shall see the pageant ii. 3 and I myself see not the bottom of it ii. 3 if he will see that there iv. 1 good uncle, go and see the iv. 1 we see it, we see it; how now, lambs? iv. 4 when shall we see again? iv. 4 be true, and I will see thee iv. 4 what see I see you so corrupt iv. 4 doth long to see unarm'd the v. 5 eat with thee, and see your knights v. 5 and see me at my tent v. 5 let us see you in the field v. 5 there, where we see the lips v. 1
 I will rather leave to see Hector v. 1 with my heart the other eye doth see v. 2 I would fain see them meet v. 4 now I see thee hal v. 5 to pray Achilles see the v. 5 let me see: full merrily v. 10 O, pray, let's see 't (rep.) Timon of Athens. i. 1 you see this confidence (rep.) i. 1 to see me set full i. 1 and he sees them not (rep.) i. 2 you see my lord, how ample i. 2 see them well entertained ii. 2 would we could see you at Corinth ii. 2 what see I see, thou art a fool iv. 2 see, by good hand, yonder's my lord (rep.) iii. 2
 O, see the monstrousness of man iii. 2
 I see no sense for't, but his iii. 3 pish! did you see my cap? (rep.) iii. 6 that see I by our foot iv. 2 I see then now; then was a iv. 3 well, I'll never see thee more iv. 3 what else to do, I'll see thee again iv. 3 alive; I swoon to see thee iv. 3 let us see first see peace in iv. 2 see thou man, and let me ne'er see thee iv. 3 you shall see him a palm v. 1 lived to see two honest men? v. 1 men may see't the better v. 1 hear him cog, see the v. 1 did see, and hear, devise, instruct Coriolanus. i. 1 see what I do deliver out to each i. 1 see, our best elders i. 1 thou shalt see me i. 1
 see him pluck Aufidius down by i. 3 methinks, I see him stamp thus i. 3
 I am glad to see your ladyship i. 3 he had rather see the swords i. 3 see, they have shut him in v. 4 see here these movers, that do prize i. 5 wherein you see me smearer i. 6 if you see this in the map of ii. 1 that weep't to see me triumph? ii. 1 that is not glad to see thee! ii. 1 I have lived to see inherited my very ii. 1 sights are spectacles to see him ii. 1 all agreeing in earnestness to see him ii. 1 seen the dumb men throng to see him ii. 1 when they play ii. 2
 when you now see, he had rather ii. 2 you see how he intends to use ii. 2 were you ignorant to see't? ii. 3 hardly in our ages see their banners ii. 3 see him out at gates (rep.) ii. 3 we see, have sided, in his behalf iv. 2 do you see, whom you have banished iv. 2 but that I see thee here iv. 5 but when they shall see, sir, v. 5 I hope to see Romans as cheap iv. 5 than see our tradesmen iv. 6 go see this rumourer whipped iv. 6 to see your wives dishonoured iv. 6 you'll see your Rome embrace v. 2
 'tis a spell, you see, of much v. 2 to see the son, the husband v. 3 nor child nor woman's face to see v. 3 see you yond' coign of the capitol v. 4 see Caesar, and rejoice in his i. 1 to see great Pompey pass i. 1 see, wher'th their basest metal i. 1 before me, let me see his face i. 2 will you go see the other of the course? i. 2 can you see your face? (rep.) i. 2 that you might see your shadow i. 2 since you know you cannot see yourself i. 2 yet, I see, thy honourable metal i. 2 as you see, have bared my bosom i. 3

SEE the strange impatience Julius Caesar, i. 3 but that he sees, the Romans i. 3 ere day, see Brutus at his house i. 3 awake, and see thyself i. 1 who doth desire to see you i. 3 when they shall see the face of Caesar ii. 2 to see him pass on to the Capitol ii. 4 you see we do; yet see you but iii. 1 our hearts you see no more iii. 1 to see thy Antony making his iii. 1 passion, I see is catching iii. 1 you all did see, that on the Lupercal iii. 2 see, what a rent the envious iii. 2 as you see, with traitors iii. 2 a friendly eye could never see such iv. 3 let me go in to see the generals iv. 3 let me see, let me see iv. 3 shall see me at Philippi (rep.) iv. 3 I will see thee at Philippi then iv. 3 didst thou see any thing? iv. 3 to see my best friend ta'en before v. 3 and see how I regarded Caius Cassius v. 3 than you shall see me pay v. 4 and see wh'er Brutus be alive or dead v. 4 and you shall see in him Antony & Cleopatra, i. 1 behold and see. If it be loove indeed i. 1 to see a handsome man loose-wived i. 2 we see how much a clowniness i. 3 where is he? I did not see him (rep.) i. 3 see when, and where she died i. 3 now I see, I see, in Fulvia's death i. 3 you may see, Lepidus, and henceforth ii. 2 where we see, fancy our way ii. 2 I see't in my motion, have it not ii. 3 till I shall see you in your ii. 4 you see we have burnt our cheeks iii. 7 to see't, mine eyes are bedied iii. 7 I'll see you by and by iii. 9 see you here, sir iii. 9 see, how I convey my shame iii. 9 see, men's judgments are iii. 11
 I see, my woman (rep.) iii. 11 you see him cringe his face iii. 11 and I see still, a diminution in iii. 11 see it be done; and feast the army iv. 1 haply, you shall not see me more iv. 2 walk, let's see a clowniness iv. 2 let's see how't will give off iv. 2 that thou couldst see my wars (rep.) iv. 4 before the sun shall see us iv. 8 thy uprise shall I see no more iv. 10 sometime, we see a clowniness iv. 12 when I should see behind me iv. 12 see thy master thus with pleached arms iv. 12
 I would not see't iv. 12
 he needs must see himself v. 1 where you shall see how hardy v. 1 and see what I can show in this v. 1 you see how easily she may v. 2 let the world see his nobleness v. 2 I might see but see another man v. 2 see, Caesar! behold, how pomp v. 2 and I shall see some squeaking v. 2
 I'll never see it; for, I am sure v. 2
 I see him rouse himself to v. 2 dost thou not see another man v. 2 to see performed the dreaded act v. 2 I do not see them bleed v. 2 come, Dolabella, see high order in v. 2 in the world that I may see again Cymbeline, i. 2 when shall we see another man? i. 2 go see my lord aboard i. 2 but, I see, you have some religion i. 2 eyes to see this vaulted arch i. 7 and on promise to see your grace i. 7 come, I'll go to see your valour i. 7 to see the enclosed lights ii. 2 I see her yet; her pretty action ii. 4 who long st, like me, to see thy lord ii. 2 I see before me, man, nor here ii. 2 a profit from all things we see ii. 3 ne'er longed my mother to see me first iii. 4 nay, be brief; I see into thy end iii. 4 let's see! I will pursue her even to iii. 5 there shall we see my valour iii. 5
 I see, a man's life is a tedious one iii. 6
 I see, you are angry iii. 6 but see, thy brother, This Cloten iv. 2 stark, as you see; thus smiling iv. 2 great griefs, I will medicine the less iv. 2 let's see the boy's face iv. 2 you see, not wore him from iv. 4 that I never did see man die? iv. 4 to see the way of blindness v. 4 I see a thing that is your good v. 5 peace, peace! see further (rep.) v. 5 methinks I see him now v. 5 see, Posthumus anchors upon Imogen v. 5 to see this gracious season v. 5 see, lord and father (rep.) Titus Andronicus, i. 2 and see his shipwreck, and his ii. 2 see our Roman hunting (rep. ii. 3) ii. 2 detested vale, you see, it is ii. 3 your glory, to see her tears ii. 3 see, that you see her sure ii. 3 more than mine eye can see ii. 4 and see a fearful sight of blood ii. 4 I'll see what hole is here ii. 4 tears, which you see in my iii. 1 see, thy two son's heads; they will iii. 1 let me see what task I have iii. 2 doth weep to see his grandsire's heaviness iii. 2 I see, thou art not for my company iii. 2 see how swift she runs iii. 2 there is that she desires to see iv. 1 see how busily she turns (rep.) iv. 1 and see their blood, or die with iv. 2 let's see, integrity's scelerisque iv. 2 more good to see a great lord iv. 2 did you see Aaron the Moor? iv. 2

SEE, that I have given her physic. Titus Andron. iv. 2 see that you take no longer days iv. 2 Aaron, I see, thou wilt not trust iv. 2 now let me see your anatomy iv. 3 to see thy noble uncle thus retract? iv. 3 see, see, thou hast shot off one of iv. 3 see you do it bravely iv. 3 come, let me see it; here, Marcus iv. 3 see this child, that he may see it iv. 3 live, and I will see it nourish v. 1 see here, in bloody lines v. 2 see, here he comes, and I must ply v. 2 and see them ready 'gainst their mother v. 2 and see the ambush of our friends be v. 3 to see him fastened in the earth v. 3 see justice done to Aaron v. 3 see where she comes, apparelled like Pericles, i. 1 see heaven, but feeling woe i. 1 and the sore eyes see to stop i. 1 for wisdom sees, those men i. 1 now do I see he had some reason for it i. 3 see if 'twill teach us to forget our i. 4 but see what heaven can do i. 4 yet those which see them fall i. 4 a man, pray see me buried ii. 1
 I pray you, let me see it ii. 1 make the gazer joy to see him tread ii. 1 for men to see, and see wonder at ii. 2 whereby I see that time's the king ii. 3 see, not a man in private conference ii. 4 I'll see you wed; then, with what ii. 5 see, how she sings to see life's ii. 5 my wedded lord, I ne'er shall see again ii. 4 but I'll see further; perhaps iv. 2 for this piece, you see; if you like her iv. 3 and swore he would see her to-morrow iv. 3 you see his heart, you see his life's iv. 4 shadows see them move a while iv. 4 see how belief may suffer by iv. 4 I am glad to see your honour iv. 6 white and red, you shall see a rose iv. 6 my authority shall see iv. 6 well, I will see what I can do iv. 6 may we not see him then? v. 1 but see, I am prevented v. 1 did come to see you v. 2 at Egeus's house, you see v. 2 may we see them? Great sir v. 3 see better, Lear; and let me still Lear, i. 1 nor shall ever see that face of hers i. 1 you see how full of changes his age is i. 1 let's see some i. 2
 I see the business—let me, if not i. 2 shall see, thy other daughter will i. 5 and received this hurt you see, striving ii. 1 on any shoulder that I see before ii. 2 nothing almost sees miracles ii. 2 shall see their children kind ii. 2 I am glad to see your highness ii. 4 no more see one another ii. 4 you see me here, you see me here iii. 1 if you shall see Cordelia, (as fate not iii. 2 then comes the time who lives to see't iii. 2 that sees his son a gentleman before him iii. 6 I'll see their trial first iii. 6 Reason, see who shall see your heart iii. 6 when we our betters see bearing iii. 6 because I would not see thy cruel nails iii. 7 but I shall see the winged vengeance iii. 7 see it shall thou never iii. 7 if you see vengeance iii. 7 to see some mischief on him iii. 7 alack, sir, you cannot see your way iv. 1 might I but live to see thee in my touch iv. 1 that will not see because he doth not iv. 1 see thy death iv. 1
 by no means yield to see his daughter iv. 3 soon may I hear, and see him iv. 4 when I do stare, see, how the subject iv. 6 the letters anon, I could not see one iv. 6 see how this world goes iv. 6 see how you justice rail upon iv. 6 seem to see the things thou dost not iv. 6 let's see his pockets; these letters iv. 6 let us see leave, gentle wax iv. 6 with pity, to see another thus iv. 7 let's see; I feel this pin prick iv. 7 the great rage, you see, is cured in him iv. 7 shall never see his pardon v. 1 shall we not see these daughters v. 3 we'll see them starve first v. 3
 I'll see that straight v. 3
 O, see, see! And my poor fool v. 3 do you see this? Look on her—look v. 3 if you see her v. 3 early walking did I see your son, Romeo & Juliet, i. 1 without eyes, see pathways to his will i. 1 all see, and like her most i. 2 can you read anything you can see? i. 2 if you see her i. 3 to see now, how a jest shall i. 3 an I might live to see thee married once i. 3 and see how one another lends content i. 3 O then, I see, queep Mab hath i. 4 see, how she stands her back upon i. 4 if they do see thee they will murder ii. 2 if I see occasion in a good quarrel ii. 4 as lief see a toad, a very toad as see him ii. 4 do you not see that I am out of breath? ii. 5 I see, I know at me ii. 5 lovers can see to do their amorous rites ii. 2 that ever I should live to see thee dead! iii. 2 then I see that madmen have no ears iii. 2 methinks, I see thee, now thou art below iii. 5 see how he will take it at your hands iii. 5 but now I see this one is too one iii. 5 that sees into the bottom of my grief? iii. 5 let me see the county iv. 2 methinks, I see my countess's ghost iv. 2 hal let me see her; out, alas! iv. 5

SEE, there she lies, flower Romeo & Juliet, iv. 5 have I thought long to see this iv. 5 let's see for means: O mischief! v. 1
 I see, that thou art not there is v. 1 see thou deliver it to my lord and v. 3 poison, I see, hath been his timeless end v. 3 we see the ground whereon these woes v. 3 to see thy son and heir more early down v. 3 look, and thou shalt see v. 3 see, what a scourge is laid upon v. 3
 I am glad to see you well (rep.) Hamlet, i. 2
 I came to see your father's funeral i. 2 it was to see my mother's wedding i. 2 my father—methinks I see my father i. 2 see you see now; your bait of falsehood ii. 1 that we much did long to see you ii. 2 that great baby, you see there ii. 2 I am glad to see thee well; welcome ii. 2 fly at anything we see ii. 2 let me see; let me see (rep. iv. 7) ii. 2 but, as we often see, against some ii. 2 if the gods themselves did see her then ii. 2 will you see the players well bestowed? ii. 2 to hear and see the matter iii. 1 see, unsee, we may of their encounter iii. 1 now see that noble and most sovereign iii. 1 seen what I have seen, see what I see! iii. 2 I will to see a rollicking rascal iii. 2 you shall see anon (rep.) iii. 2 ill I could see the puppets dallying iii. 2 O, the recorders! let me see one iii. 2 do you see that see; should it almost iii. 2 where you may see the inmost iii. 2 see, what a grace was seated on this brow iii. 4 there I see such black and grain'd spots iii. 4 do you see nothing there (rep.) iii. 4 see either to follow, or to look behind iii. 4 I see a cherub that sees them iv. 3 to my shame, I see the imminent iv. 4 do you see this, O God? iv. 5 beg leave to see your kindly eyes iv. 7 what I see, I see; should I not see iv. 7 and we had the trick to see't v. 1 Col. Kn. let me see. Alas poor Yorick! v. 1 of quiet shortly shall we see v. 1 so much for this, sir; now shall you see v. 2 I see the portents, and I look behind v. 2 what part a gentleman would see v. 2 this is too heavy, let me see another v. 2 she awouns to see them bleed v. 2 treachery I see it out v. 2 what is it, you see? v. 2 Roderigo, where didst thou see her Othello, i. 1 minds, by what you see them act i. 1 I did not see you; welcome, gentle i. 3 a quick eye to see; should I not see i. 3 I see, thou shalt see an answerable i. 3 let me see now; to get his place (rep.) i. 3 as well to see the vessel that's come in ii. 1 see for the news. Good ancient you are ii. 1 see either to follow, or to look behind ii. 1 as my content, to see you here before me ii. 1 didst thou not see her paddle with the ii. 1 you see this fellow, that is gone before ii. 3 and do but see his vice ii. 3 perhaps he is gone to see his ii. 3 fortification, gentlemen,—shall we see? ii. 3 no, Iago, I'll see before I doubt ii. 3 they do let heaven see the pranks ii. 3 I see, this hath a little dashed your spirits ii. 3 do you see your own ii. 3 we see in all things nature tends ii. 3 doubtless, sees and knows more ii. 3 make me to see it; or (at the least) so prove ii. 3 I see, sir, you are eaten up with ii. 3 if ever mortal eyes see him ii. 3 it is impossible, you should see this ii. 3 yet we see nothing done; she may be ii. 3 did I to-day, see Cassio wipe his beard ii. 3 now do I see 'tis true; look here Iago ii. 3 fetch't, let me see it! Why, so ii. 4 to have him see me woman'd ii. 4 if I shall see you soon (rep.) ii. 4 O, I see that nose of yours, but not ii. 4 well, I may chance to see you ii. 4 and did you see the handkerchief? ii. 4 and to see how he prizes the foolish iv. 1 glad to see you, signior iv. 1
 I am glad to see you mad iv. 1 let me see your eyes; look in my face iv. 2 why, now I see there a mettle in you iv. 2 see, and smell, and have their palates iv. 3 I am glad to see you. How do you, Cassio? v. 1 do you see, gentlemen? Nay, guiltiness v. 1 let's go see your v. 1
 I thought you do see me wenches v. 2
